Once upon a time there was a little girl called Little Red Riding Hood. One day her mother said to her, “Your Granny is ill. Please take these cakes to her. Do not stop on the way and do not talk to strangers.”

Little Red Riding Hood, Granny and the woodcutter filled the wolf’s tummy with stones, sewed him up and took him deep into the woods. When he woke up he had a very bad tummy ache.

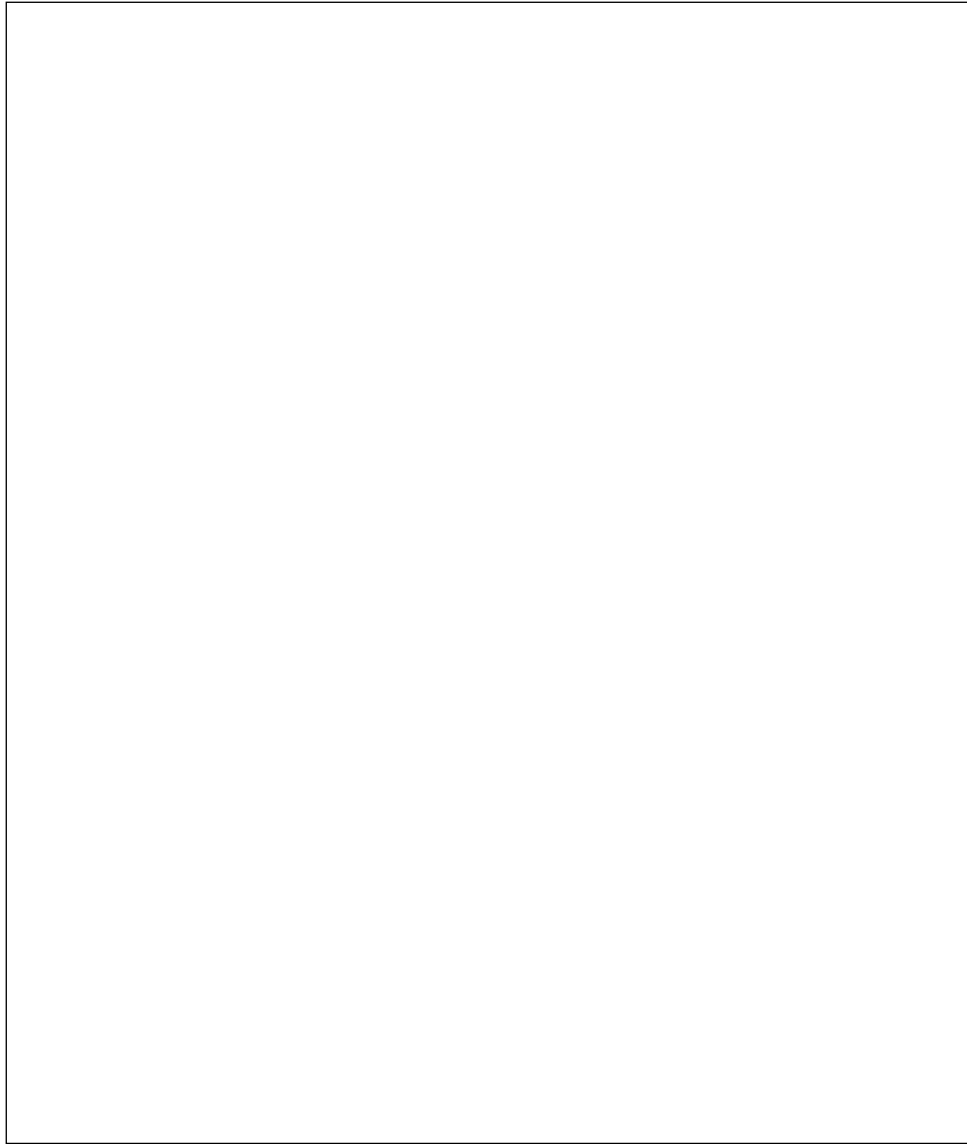

“From now on I will always do as Mother asks and never speak to strangers,” said Little Red Riding Hood. Mr Wolf never bothered them again and they all lived happily ever after.

Little Red Riding Hood promised to be very good and set off into the woods. But on the way she met a wicked wolf who wanted to know all about her.

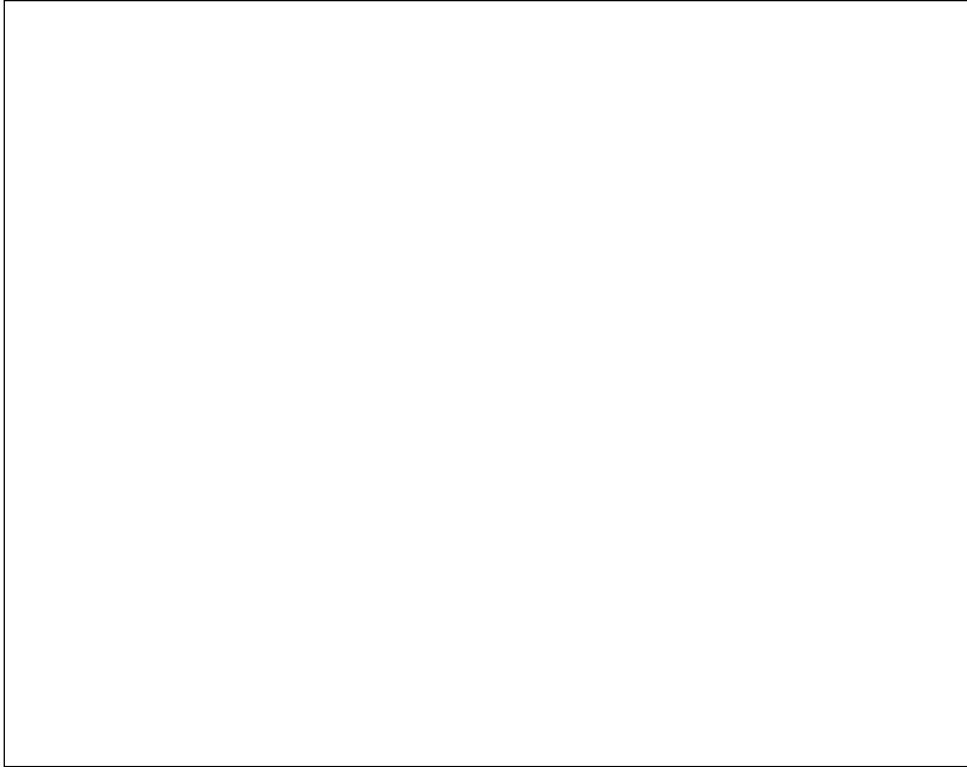

“My name is Little Red Riding Hood and I’m going to my Granny’s cottage in the woods,” said Little Red Riding Hood, forgetting her promise to her mother.

Little Red Riding Hood started to scream. A woodcutter heard her screams and ran to Granny’s cottage. He hit the wolf on the head, cut open his tummy and out popped Granny!

Mr Wolf thought that Little Red Riding Hood looked very tasty and made a plan. He ran to Granny's cottage and knocked on the door.

"Who is it?" said Granny.

"It's me, Little Red Riding Hood," said Mr Wolf in his sweetest voice.

"Come in, come in," said Granny.

Mr Wolf went in, opened his mouth and gobbled up Granny. Then he put on Granny's clothes and waited for Little Red Riding Hood in Granny's bed.

When Little Red Riding Hood arrived she thought that her Granny looked very, very odd.

"Granny, what big ears you have!" said Little Red Riding Hood.

"All the better to hear you with," said Mr Wolf.

"Granny, what big eyes you have!" said Little Red Riding Hood.

"All the better to see you with," said Mr Wolf.

"Granny, what big teeth you have!" said Little Red Riding Hood.

"All the better to eat you with and I'm going to eat you up!" said Mr Wolf.
