Once upon a time there was a man and his wife. The wife really wanted to eat the salad that grew in the witch's garden next door. So the man climbed into the garden and took some of the salad.

But the witch was waiting for him and was angry. The man was scared but said that he needed the salad for his wife. The witch said that he could have the salad if they gave her their first-born child.

Rapunzel and the prince had a grand wedding and lived happily ever after. The old witch was never seen again.

The prince fell from the tower into some thorns which made him blind. He walked and walked for days through the woods.

One day he heard Rapunzel's beautiful singing. Rapunzel was so happy to see the prince that she started to cry. Two tears dropped on to the prince's eyes and he could see again.

A year later a baby girl was born. The witch took her and called her Rapunzel.

When Rapunzel was twelve, the witch shut her up in a tower in the woods. Every day the witch came to see Rapunzel and shouted, "Rapunzel, Rapunzel, let down your hair." Rapunzel threw her long plait of golden hair out of the window and up climbed the witch.

One day a handsome prince came riding through the woods. He saw the tower and could hear some beautiful singing. Then he saw the witch and heard her call to Rapunzel.

The next day the prince came back to the tower and said, “Rapunzel, Rapunzel, let down your hair!” Rapunzel’s hair fell to the ground and the prince climbed up. When Rapunzel saw him she was frightened, but he was kind to her.

Every day the prince came to see Rapunzel and soon they fell in love. The prince asked her to marry him and together they made a plan.

But the witch found out about their plan and she cut off Rapunzel’s hair and took her deep into the woods. Then the witch waited in the tower.

When the prince came he said, “Rapunzel, Rapunzel, let down your hair.” The witch threw the golden plait down to the prince and he climbed up. “You will never see Rapunzel again!” said the witch.
